The Carlisle Mercury, that political feeling is running so high that friendships

Honest Expressions. long years standing are disrupted, and oldtime associates regard one another with suspicion. No man is too high to be free from slander, and the Courts-both high and low-are subject to adverse criticism in public and private. Judges who once were regarded high are no longer considered more than the merest political mountebank, and decisions are said to be ground out to orders issued by political powers; and Editor KELLER continues:

"The Speaker of the House is charged openly with protecting the Chief Clerk of the House in fraudulently drawing the Committees of Contest, and a State Senator has the face to stand in his place in the Senate and admit that he had agreed to sell his vote. Other Senators and Representatives are accused of admitting that they were influenced in their actions by promises of places for themselves or constituents.

"Newspapers are used to cast reflections on every man who disagrees with the methods of their side, and no man's good name is safe while this is the rule.

"So far the Democrats have all the best of it. Senator GOEBEL is Chairman of the Democratic Caucus and Steering Committee, Senator and Speaker pro tem of the Senate, beside claiming to be the rightful Governor, and certainly he ought to win. He has a Committee of Contest consisting of ten Democrats and one lonesome Republican, and he certainly ought to be able to see that poor YARBERRYthat's the lonesome Republican's name-does not cheat him out of the Governorship.

"Enough seats are contested in the House to make that body safely Democratic. It is already Democratic by sixteen majority-but some of that majority have said that they would be guided in their verdict by the law and the evidence, and of course it is a risky business to trust them, so men must be put in who are true Democrats, and know how to sympathize

"And there stands the Democratic with revolvers. party! 'One suffering in reputation and those claiming to be its only friends. "It is true we have a new Election with us; but suppose by some hook or crook we should lose either one of these bulwarks of civil liberty and Pool was an ex-convict. fair elections, what could we say in the day of our adversity, or unto whom should we cry in the hour of our undoing?

"Our leaders are men without fear, and it looks as though we may be able to ride like NAPOLEON over the dead of many Nations; but who will come unto us when our Waterloo comes?"
